Here's The News!

How (1) bottles of water have you had this week?

Water is an important ingredient of our body (about 60 percent of it is water), so we should make sure we drink enough of it. The problem is (2) of the water we drink every day comes in single-use plastic bottles. Only (3) of them are recycled, and do you know how (4) time it takes for a plastic bottle to decompose? It's hundreds of years!

That is why a team of engineers and designers in London started looking for an alternative. They have come up with an edible container made of seaweed. It looks like a bubble, it can be filled with water or other drinks and it has (5) taste at all. Those who have tried eating it say it's an amazing and funny experience. However, if you don't feel like eating the container, just bite it and drink what's inside. You can throw the seaweed skin away, it's biodegradable and will decompose in (6) weeks.
