Mum: Nancy, have you seen my sunglasses anywhere?

Nancy: Oh mum, have you lost them again? They're usually somewhere in the kitchen!

Mum: No, I've looked there, and I've checked the hall. I sometimes leave them on the hall table but not this time. I can't think where they are.

Nancy: Hang on, I'll look outside. Perhaps you took them off while you were doing the gardening.

Mum: Oh, yes, maybe I did ... I'll come and look with you, I'll ... Oh?

Nancy: What?

Mum: Umm, they're here, on top of the fridge.

Nancy: I thought you'd looked in the kitchen?

Mum: I know, I didn't see them the first time. Sorry.

Waiter: So, are you ready for me to take your order?

Guest: Hmm, I'm not sure yet. What kind of soup do you have today?

Waiter: It's onion soup today, I can recommend it.

Guest: Oh, I'm not too keen on onions. What about the chicken curry? Is it very spicy?

Waiter: Not very, no, it isn't.

Guest: OK, I'll have that, please.

Waiter: Certainly. And would you like anything else? A salad, perhaps?

Guest: Oh, hmmm, I love salads, but not this time, thanks.

Waiter: Anything to drink?

Guest: No, thanks, or ... Sorry, just some water please.

Waiter: Of course.

Dave: Hi Jamie. How's the football training going? What's it like now you're in the team?

Jamie: Oh, hi, Dave. Yes, it's good thanks. We won our last match.

Dave: Is that where you're going now? To a training session?

Jamie: Oh, no, we train on Wednesdays and Saturdays. No, today's basketball practice!

Dave: Oh, really? How long have you been doing that?

Jamie: About six months. I got fed up with swimming, the pool is so far away.

Dave: Wow. You must be awfully fit. How do you manage it all?

Jamie: I don't know really, I just like sport!

A: Excuse me, do you know what time the next train to London is?

B: To London? I don't think the trains go to London from here.

A: Oh, no, sorry, I think I have to change at Birmingham.

B: Birmingham? Oh, right. The next train is in about five minutes.

A: Great, thanks. Do you know which platform it goes from?

B: Yes, this one. I'm waiting for it myself.

A: Cool. Thank you.

Look, that man over there is my uncle Harry. He's my mum's brother. We don't see him very often. My cousins are here somewhere, too – Jenny and Tim. Jenny's 16, same as me, and Tim's a year or two older. I'm not sure where they are at the moment, they must be in the other room. Um, that girl over there, the one with the short brown hair, is my brother's girlfriend, Mandy. The other

This is my favourite day of the year. In the morning, my dad, my sister and I decorate the tree. My mum doesn't help because she spends all day in the kitchen. After lunch, dad drives to my grandparents' house – his parents – and brings them to our house where they stay until the 28th of December. My mum's parents never come. They've got a holiday home in the Canary Islands and always spend the winter there. We had Christmas there once. The weather was amazing but it didn't feel right somehow. I love going there in February but not at Christmas. Most people like Christmas Day better than Christmas Eve because they get presents but, for me, the 24th is more special.

Rob: Hi, May. Have you got any of your exam results yet?

May: Oh, hi Rob. I've got a few. I didn't do very well in Science, I'm quite disappointed.

Rob: Oh, that's your favourite subject, isn't it?

May: Yes, it is. It's weird. I got a good mark for Geography, and I don't even like it much! Oh, and Emily's upset cos she only got 53% for Maths and that's the subject she likes best.

Anyway, what about you? Have you got any results yet? I bet you've come top in English.

Rob: I don't know yet but I hope I've done OK. It's what I want to study at university, after all.

May: Oh, I heard Katie's got good marks for IT. I'm not surprised cos she's very keen on it.

Rob: Yeah, she's a bit of a geek...

My mum and dad were out yesterday afternoon and they left me, my brother and my sister alone. Well, alone with my sister's boyfriend. He brought some DVDs but no-one wanted to watch them so he went to my sister's room to listen to some of her CDs. She was angry because she couldn't concentrate on her school work and had to go downstairs to the living room to do it. My brother was in his room, bored as usual. I asked him to help me in the kitchen but he preferred to look at websites on the computer. I was in the kitchen because today it's my mum's birthday so I thought I'd surprise her by making a cake. As I was starting, my friend arrived. 'Great' I thought 'now I've got someone who can help me.' He came to the kitchen but he wasn't much help. He just sat there watching me make the cake and sending messages to his friends and taking photos of me working.

Przykładowa odpowiedź:

I am in London now and yesterday when we were visiting the Buckingham Palace our guide was a girl with pink hair. I was surprised that such a young and extravagant person works there, so I decided to talk to her after the tour.

She told me she was 19 years old and she worked to collect money for her trip around the world. She had a great sense of humour and she knew many things! I was really impressed and fascinated by her.

I told her I live in Poland. I gave her my phone number and she promised to call. I really hope I'll see her again when she starts her trip.
