A: Hi Angela. Sorry you missed school today. How are you?

B: Not too bad. I'll be at school tomorrow. I was watching Arthur in the Under 16 Tennis tournament on Saturday. It was freezing and I caught a cold.

A: Did he win?

B: No, but it's lucky for me because I agreed to buy him new shorts and a new T-shirt if he won. Is Olivia back from America?

A: Yes, she showed us some photos of her playing basketball there. She looked cool. Melanie's team won the basketball competition. Well, it's not her team actually, Tina is the captain, but anyway Melanie was very happy with the result. And did you know that Sandra didn't play? She says she's bored with basketball and today she did gymnastics for the first time. She's really good.

B: Did Eric play football?

A: No, he couldn't do any sports today because he'd hurt his leg. He fell down the stairs at the shopping centre on Saturday. He was just buying new swimming trunks and goggles. I think he's getting ready for next summer already!

B: Poor Eric! At least he bought some nice clothes!

One of the biggest malls in the world is in Dubai. It's called the Dubai Mall. There are 1,200 shops there including the largest sweet shop in the world. There are also some truly enormous malls in the USA. The biggest one, the Mall of America, is so big that there's room for a theme park inside it! 40 million people visit this mall every year, which makes it more popular than Disneyland.

However, not all shopping malls are successful, even if they are enormous. The biggest mall in the world is in China. It's called the New South China Mall, and it opened in 2005. As well as nearly two and a half thousand shops, there are some amazing attractions there including a canal with gondolas, like in Venice. The only problem is, nobody goes there. It's too difficult for people to get to the mall because there aren't enough roads.

I decided to go into politics when I was at university. It was a great feeling when I was elected in 2005. However, things changed and we became unpopular because of our ideas about immigration. At the last election, I lost my job as an MP and I haven't worked since then.

3.2

I come from a very poor part of the country. We lived on a big estate and the school I went to was very dangerous. I had a bad time there because of bullies. Now most of the people I went to school with are in prison for stealing or worse. I left the area and am trying to forget my experiences there.

3.3

When I came to this country, twenty years ago, it was very difficult. I didn't speak any English and I was worried about meeting people and being bullied because of my colour. When I did go out, everyone was very kind and I soon found a job. I can't understand people who are unemployed or who steal. Work hard, that's what I say.

3.4

Life is very unfair. There isn't much work around here, only boring, badly-paid jobs. I have to clean the streets. Politicians don't care about people like me. My local MP stole £5000 and all that happened was that he had to say sorry to parliament. I stole £50 because I didn't have anything to eat and I might have to go to prison.

Przykładowa odpowiedź:

I was doing my shopping in one of the clothes shops. I was in a fitting room, when I heard some strange noise in the shop.

When I went out I saw two policemen who were arresting a young woman. One of the shop assistants told me this woman had stolen things from this shop and from customers a few times before. Fortunately, the shop manager recognised her and called the police in time. When the police searched her, it turned out that she was carrying a few customers' wallets and some clothes from the shop in her bag.

I'm so shocked by this incident. This thief could steal my wallet! I think I'll never go shopping there again.
